

Nancy is the managing partner of Stow Garvin & Glenn, a firm in Gainesville Georgia specializing in workers' compensation, social security disability and personal injury. She has represented thousands of injured workers at the trial level and all appellate levels through the Georgia Court of Appeals.

Nancy began her legal career in the litigation department of Alston & Bird after graduating from the Emory University School of Law. She also worked for one year at Shivers & Associates in Alpharetta Georgia, serving as in-house counsel for Travelers Insurance.

In addition to representing injured workers, Nancy is an experienced workers' compensation mediator where her background in both claimants and defense work has been invaluable in getting difficult claims resolved.

Nancy is proud and delighted that her son Oliver Ladd, a recent graduate of the University of Georgia School of Law, has joined the firm and is diligently seeking justice for Georgia's injured workers.
